

CPAP & APAP

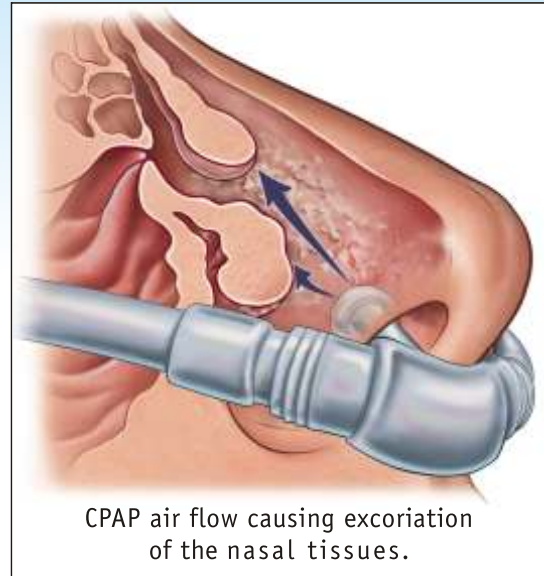

Nozoil® prevents and relieves most uncomfortable nasal symptoms caused by CPAP

Nasal symptoms in patients using CPAP for treatment of sleep apnoea

Nasal symptoms including congestion, runny nose, dry and crusty nose are common in patients using nasal CPAP for treatment of sleep apnoea.

These symptoms result from an inflammatory response of the delicate nasal tissues.

When air is forced across the nasal membranes at higher than normal flow rates an inflammatory response results.

CPAP air flow causing excoriation of the nasal tissues.

The inflammatory pathway in nasal tissues is well documented.

To stop this inflammation it is necessary to:

- Block the pathways of inflammation
- Shield the nasal tissue from the adverse effects of air at high flow rate
- Mop up all the enzymes and oxygen free radicals that start the tissue damage
